FRIENDLESS COYOTE.

TRICKS OF HIS ENEMIES TO MAKE MONEY OUT OF HIM.

A County That Paid Bounty Twelve Times on the Same Set of Scalps—In Spite of Wholesale Killing, the Pest Does Not Appear to Decrease.

The one friendless, hunted Ishmaelite of the plains, against whom is every man's hand, is the prairie wolf—the coyote. If he is adapted to any sphere of usefulness on earth, nobody has yet been shrewd enough to find it out; if he has ever done a respectable deed, it has not yet come to light. The jack rabbit will at least furnish the basis for a savory stew in case of need, the buffalo was valued for its hide, the rattlesnake is worth preserving for curiosities, but there is yet to be discovered a method of utilizing any portion of the coyote from his snarling mouth to his ragged tail—except as a fertilizer. The short grass country is his home, the high prairies where the gray, hairlike vegetation that is called pasture blends with the dirty coat of the vandal. Through it he sneaks and runs, now a gaunt figure on the horizon, now an ungainly shape near at hand. He is without acquaintance with anything that is alive, usually solitary, always with a criminal aspect, as if he had just done something to be ashamed of or was contemplating a deed of the sort at the earliest opportunity.

Once the coyote had the whole Indian Territory to himself. He could snarl and fight to his heart's content, and there was none to say him nay. But when the lands were opened to settlement and a family took its place on every quarter section there was less room for the wild creatures of the plains who had before been undisturbed. Then the coyote had to go out among men, and he found that he was a very unpopular immigrant into any of the communities that he favored with his presence. And he earned the right to be considered honestly. He robbed the sheepfolds, stole the chickens and made the traveler afraid—all without any equivalent in service. Furthermore, he is essentially a coward. The men of the frontier have a sort of respect for the brave creature that defies them or for the cunning one that outwits them, but they can never forgive the trembling one that is alarmed at their very appearance. So, from the farmer's son who blazes away with his old shotgun at the prowling coyote behind the barn to the city sportsman who wastes a cartridge intended for a prairie chicken or duck in ending the life of a wolf trotting along the hedgerow, there is a ceaseless, unrelenting war waged against the luckless wanderer.

Since the immigration of the wolves from the territory into the farming and stock raising states to the north there has been more than a desultory warfare. The farmers have banded together to protect the flocks and herds and have offered generous bounties for the scalps of the creatures, a proceeding that has resulted in the slaughter of thousands. Yet the supply seems none the less, and all the sharpshooting is but a waste of powder and balls. Year after year there are reported from 1,200 to 1,500 sheep killed in Nebraska and Kansas by wolves, and the hundreds of dollars spent for bounties have produced little diminution of the plague.

Sometimes the bounties are not what they are purported to be. The people of a western county found once that they were being taxed very heavily for the payment of this sort of expense and that certain hunters were buying new farms out of the proceeds of their prowess on the plains. An examination followed, and it was found that there was in existence an endless chain in comparison with which the greenbacks and gold reserves make but a feeble showing. At the rear of the county clerk's office, where the redeemed scalps were thrown, was a convenient opening in the wall, and through this the scalps were pulled in the night, to be presented at the counter in the morning for another bounty of $8 each. It was estimated that the county had paid for one set of scalps not less than 12 times, and the emptiness of the treasury was explained. The saddest part of the happening was that the schemers saw the investigators at the hole and became bounty jumpers at once—jumping the county for safer climes.

Another curious circumstance was noticed by the officers of two counties adjoining in central Kansas. The officers of one were paying out money every day for wolf scalps while the others seldom had any demands for the reward. Each of the hunters was compelled to swear that he had killed the wolf inside the boundaries of the county where the scalp was presented, and there was no reason for doubting the truth of the testimony. But what could be the reason of the disparity in the claims? One day a settler's son was questioned:

"Where did you kill this wolf?"
"Down near the edge of the county."
"Are coyotes very thick there?"
"Well, rather, though not so thick as they are farther south."

"Over in the other county."
"Yes, there are more there."
"But they do not kill any there. Why is it?"

The other county only pays $1 for scalps and this pays $2. So we drive them over the line before we shoot them."

The county officers at once readjusted the scale of rewards.—Chicago Times Herald.

The average weight of a dozen eggs is about 21/4 ounces. One-eighth of this extra weight may be regarded as nitrogenous and nutritious matter, a greater proportion than that of meat or of the yester.

Precolumbian Books in America.

George Byron Gordon, the explorer, contributes to the Century an account of the discoveries in Copan under the title of "The Mysterious City of Honduras." Concerning the ancient race of Mayas Mr. Gordon says:

Not only did traditions exist in the minds of the people, but many of the old Indian families still preserved their books, the remnants of once extensive libraries, in which the history, traditions and customs of the people were recorded.

All these books that the Spanish priests could lay their hands upon they burned. Four only have come down to us—priceless relics, that in some unknown manner found their way into European libraries, where they lay hidden until unearthed by scholars of recent years. The books of the Mayas consisted of long strips of paper made from maguey fiber, and folded after the manner of a screen so as to form pages about 9 by 11 inches. These were covered with hieroglyphic characters, very neatly drawn by hand, in brilliant colors.

Beards were fastened on the outside pages, and the completed book looked like a neat volume of large octavo size.

The characters in which they are written are the same as those found upon the stone tablets and monuments in the ruined cities of Palenque and Copan.

This system of writing, which is entirely distinct from the picture writing of the Aztecs, was the exclusive possession of the Mayas. It was a highly developed system, and, as investigations have shown, embraced a number of phonetic elements. In this respect, as in many others, the Mayas were far in advance of any other American people. A venerable but vague and elusive legend that has come down to us ascribes the invention of these characters to Itzamana, the Maya Cadmus, a great hero god who in the beginning of their history as a nation led the people from the east across the sea, gave them laws and ruled over them for many years.

A CONSPICUOUS PRECEDENT.

"Shiftless as ever, Thomas?" said the wealthy uncle. "Still making a failure of life, as you always have done?"

"I don't know that I'm such a terrible failure," sulkily answered the poor relation.

"Why, you have nobody but yourself to support, and you can't make both ends meet."

"Well, the rainbow has only itself to support, and it doesn't make both ends meet."—Chicago Tribune.

ANTWERP BELLS.

From the cathedral tower at Antwerp 80 bells have for over 200 years rung the grandest music for the benefit of the people living on the green fields which border the Scheldt. Once a year, in the month of February, the authorities select the music, and the organ plays every hour from the old masters or Christian song.

THE CATTLE QUARANTINE.

The proposition of the Secretary of Agriculture to include Nevada in the infected district of California and extend the cattle quarantine regulations to this State is not received with favor by the cattlemen. Dr. W. H. Patterson of Reno says the cattlemen are unanimously opposed to including Nevada in the quarantined district, and James Russell, President of the Elko County Cattle Association, telegraphs that the Association emphatically protests against placing Nevada under quarantine laws or raising the quarantine between Nevada and any infected district.

The above are doubtless the views of a large majority of the cattlemen of Nevada. Probably all are opposed to raising the quarantine so as to admit cattle from an infected district. There are others, however, who want to re-stock their ranges, that would prefer to have quarantine regulations modified so that healthy cattle from California, Arizona or New Mexico, could be shipped to Nevada.

The conditions are these: According to all reports there is a great scarcity of cattle in Nevada, and there is pasture for many more. Cattle are also scarce in California, but there is no feed in parts of the State and it is feared that many will die of starvation. Several Nevada cattlemen desire to purchase cattle in California and ship them to Nevada. This they are prohibited from doing under existing regulations, hence they want a modification of the quarantine rules so that cattle free from disease can be brought here from California.

The farmers who raise hay with a view of disposing of it to stockmen in the late fall and winter, want more cattle on the ranges, as that will increase the demand for feed, and give them a home market for their hay. The interests of the cattlemen, whose ranges are now stocked, and of the cattlemen who want more stock on their ranges, are therefore conflicting, as are also the interests of the alfalfa growers, who want a market for their hay on the ranches.

FITZUGH LEE.

Consul-General Fitzugh Lee, whose course in dealing with the Spanish in Cuba has won for him so much admiration, is a grandson of Henry Lee (Light Horse Harry) of Revolutionary fame and a nephew of General Robert E. Lee and was a cavalry officer during the Civil War. He is a man of high literary attainments, and won his greatest fame as a literary man by his biography of General Robert E. Lee. He was graduated from the West Point Military Academy in 1856 at the age of sixteen.

It has been officially denied that Emperor William of Germany at a private dinner party made the declaration that "so long as he was the German Emperor the United States should not possess themselves of Cuba."

Evidently Emperor William does not propose to be drawn into any complications with the United States by the acts of an over zealous newspaper correspondent. He lost no time in making an official denial of the reported speech and took occasion to make the denial emphatic.

THE prompt action of the United States in preparing for any emergency of a war like character, has encouraged the Cuban Insurgents into the belief that independence is near at hand and they are swarming around the city of Havana, ready to strike the moment the United States takes decisive steps. It is estimated that 5,000 men in the city of Havana will immediately join the Cuban army should there be a declaration of war on the part of this government.

REPORTS from the Kionuque indicate that the desirable territory in that region has all been taken and that gold seekers who go to that country now will find themselves compelled to go hungry or engage in common labor. The northward rush which has already begun is bound to result in costly disappointment for thousands of men who would better have remained at home.

THE sailing of the Spanish torpedo flotilla from Cadiz, Spain, accompanied by the steamer Cunad de Cadiz is looked upon with suspicion. The flotilla consists of six torpedo boats. Simultaneously with the departure of the flotilla, the United States warships Helena and Bancroft weighed anchor and left the port. It is believed that the Helena and Bancroft will follow the Spanish squadron across the Atlantic.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt of the Navy says that an aggressive policy will be pursued from the moment hostilities break out and Spain will be made to feel immediately the full force and power of the American Navy.

It seems that Japan, since she adopted the gold standard, has done nothing but borrow money to meet deficiencies. She could expect nothing else in contracting her volume of money.

Mr. J. BRYAN has said: "I do not regard war as inevitable. If the excitement does not do any more than put the coast defenses in proper condition something is gained."

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

The Holland Submarine torpedo boat has been given another trial and is reported to have acted admirably and fully up to the expectations of her builders.

The three-masted vessel New York which went ashore at Half Moon bay during the storm on Sunday night is considered doomed. She is almost high and dry on the beach and the surf has pounded her up badly.

Senator Proctor, President McKinley's special envoy to Cuba, is reported as saying that the Maine was blown up as a result of an external explosion and that no private citizen, under the regulations of the Havana harbor, could plant a submarine mine without the knowledge of the Spanish authorities.

H. E. Huntington has been placed under arrest at the instance of the Examiner on a charge of the violation of ordinance No. 2866. The arrest is the outcome of the accident which caused the death of little Hulda Johnson in January, by being crushed under a fenderless car.

The British ship Conway arrived at Port Townsend and reports that three volcanoes on the Sava Island which have been extinct for centuries, have broken out and a reign of terror is prevailing. Showers of lava are descending, completely obliterating farms and destroying human and brute life. The loss of life is reported as appalling.

Notwithstanding the report of the Spanish Board of Inquiry, that the Maine was blown up by an internal explosion, a Spanish diver in the employ of the Spanish Government brought up from the bottom of the bay a can containing unexploded powder. The discovery of the can and its situation is a hard matter for the Spanish officials to explain.

Secretary Long of the Navy says that the United States is now prepared for war. The Government has secured the two foreign warships, viz, the Amazonas and Abroural lately built for the Brazilian Government. The Secretary says that in addition to these several other war vessels have been placed at the disposal of the United States. Sixty merchant ships are now at New York which will be inspected by the Naval Board with the purpose of properly fitting them out as auxiliary to the Navy.

Senator Chandler has expressed him self that the Board of Inquiry is entirely to slow in filing its report concerning the Maine disaster. He says: "We have waited long and patiently and now four weeks have elapsed without any information." He adds that a report is current that the delay has been occasioned by a conference between leaders of both Houses of Congress at which it was decided to put the report off until after the adjournment of Congress in two weeks and leave the Cuban problem to be worked out by the President according to his own notions. But he adds that his judgment is that no adjournment will be taken until Cuba is made free.

To The Public.

We announce to the residents of Reno and vicinity that we have employed F. T. Taylor, late of Chicago, an experienced hardware man and tin man. Mr. Taylor will be pleased to wait on all patrons in the store or shop.

Lord Alvanley.

Lord Alvanley followed Sheridan and Brummell as a sayer of good things, but those most generally quoted have a touch of sarcasm malice, for cynical talk was a fashion of the time. When Brummell made his midnight fitting to Butelogue at the suit of the Jews, he remarked complacently, "Brummell has gone quite right to be off; it was Solomon's judgment." He was a kindhearted man and gave many proofs of generosity to acquaintances in distress. One of those he had assisted was the well known Jack Talbot, a reckless prodigal, who had repeatedly borrowed of him. When Talbot was beggared and lying on his deathbed, Alvanley met his doctor and inquired about the invalid. The answer was: "My lord, I fear he is in a bad way. I had to use the lancet." "You should have tapped him, doctor," said Alvanley coolly. "I fear he has more claret than blood in his veins."

Much more excusable, considering the man and the circumstances, was Alvanley's expostulation when he had been persuaded to dine with the eccentric millionaire Neeld in his new mansion in Grosvenor square. The host, with the vulgarity of a nouveau riche, was expatiating on the sumptuous decorations of the apartment and, in the words of Milton, "letting dinner cool." "I don't care what your gilding cost," said Alvanley bluntly, "but I am most anxious to make a trial of your carving, for I am famished." —Cornhill Magazine.

A Medieval Feast.

The banquet which was held here at the marriage of Count Ulrich with the Bavarian Princess Sabina has a luster all its own. Seven thousand guests were present, and for their serving 800 of the handsomest people that could be found in all the land were brought to the castle and costumed in red and yellow cloth and in the 14 colossal kitchens were serving day and night nearly the same number of cooks. The feast continued one week, and during this time there were consumed 130 oxen, 1,800 calves, 570 capons, 1,200 chickens, 2,750 fieldhorses, 11 tons of salmon, 90 tons of herrings, 120 pounds of cloves, 40 pounds of saffron, 200,000 eggs, 3,000 sacks of flour and 1,760,000 gallons of wine. For eight days and nights a public wine fountain poured unintermittently through eight tubes red and white wine for all that wished to drink.

MISER GENIUSES.

Men Who Have Reduced Money Saving to a Fascinating Art.

A Rat Catcher's Story.

The fascinating study of financial gain amounts almost to genius in some. Avarice was the inspiration of one of our own great men, Franklin, whose memory is debased by his reputation as "Poor Richard." The masterpiece of Balzac is his novel "Eugenie Grandet." The hero, old Grandet, is a miser whose financial genius amounts to the sublime and which Balzac contrives and succeeds in making almost picturesque.

Among the most distinguished misers was Daniel Dancer. Upon the death of his father Dancer came into the estate, which yielded a good income. One of his sisters lived with him and imbibed the miserly teachings. Dancer was remarkable for the style of his garments.

His coat was made of pieces of every hue and texture, collected from the streets and ash heaps. His garments were held together by a twist of hay.

He and his sister lived happily in a hovel, the paneless sashes of which were darkened with boards, rags and papers.

Soap and towels being expensive, Mr. Dancer occasionally washed in a pond and dried himself with sand. Three pounds of coarse beef and 14 dumplings formed their menu for years, except upon one occasion, when Providence changed the course of these viands.

Edwin Booth as a Husband.

At this period the second Mrs. Booth, always a nervous invalid, began to show signs of the mental lack of balance which finally sapped her own life and almost broke his heart. During her frequent attacks at Saratoga and later, when the two families met in New York and in London, sometimes she was very trying, but I never knew him to show a sign or utter a word of impatience. He bore meekly with everything she said and did, made excuses for her, concealed her irritability and her irresponsibility as much as possible. He held her in his arms, as if she were a baby, for hours and nights together without a murmur, and he showed a devotion that hardly can be equaled. —Laurence Hutton in Harper's Magazine.

Lord Alvanley followed Sheridan and Brummell as a sayer of good things, but those most generally quoted have a touch of sarcasm malice, for cynical talk was a fashion of the time. When Brummell made his midnight fitting to Butelogue at the suit of the Jews, he remarked complacently, "Brummell has gone quite right to be off; it was Solomon's judgment." He was a kindhearted man and gave many proofs of generosity to acquaintances in distress. One of those he had assisted was the well known Jack Talbot, a reckless prodigal, who had repeatedly borrowed of him. When Talbot was beggared and lying on his deathbed, Alvanley met his doctor and inquired about the invalid. The answer was: "My lord, I fear he is in a bad way. I had to use the lancet." "You should have tapped him, doctor," said Alvanley coolly. "I fear he has more claret than blood in his veins."

Much more excusable, considering the man and the circumstances, was Alvanley's expostulation when he had been persuaded to dine with the eccentric millionaire Neeld in his new mansion in Grosvenor square. The host, with the vulgarity of a nouveau riche, was expatiating on the sumptuous decorations of the apartment and, in the words of Milton, "letting dinner cool." "I don't care what your gilding cost," said Alvanley bluntly, "but I am most anxious to make a trial of your carving, for I am famished." —Cornhill Magazine.

He constantly guarded against thieves and concealed his gold and bank notes with the spiders among their cobwebs in the cowhouse and in the holes in the chimney, covering them with ashes. The light of generosity, however, penetrated one shink of his miserable soul—he loved his dog, and while denying himself bread he allowed his dog a pint of milk daily with other delicacies. Mr. Dancer's delight in life was to visit the holes where his wealth was kept and count it.

In his seventy-eighth year Dancer became violently ill, but refused to see a physician. Again Lady Temple played the good fairy at the wretched hovel, attending him to the last and was generously rewarded by his immensity for which he left her.

It would not be a difficult task to show the influence of avarice upon nations; the evils of society, the corruptions of religion and the tragedies of war have often been instigated and supported by this base passion.—Detroit Free Press.

Man's Ruling Wish.

There is one wish ruling over mankind, and it is a wish which is never in a single instance granted—each man wishes to be his own master. It is a boy's beatific vision, and it remains the grown up man's ruling passion to the last. But the fact is life is a service. The only question is, whom shall we serve? —W. F. Faber.

Half a century ago the iconoclasts who would have dared question that Romulus and Remus owed their nurturing to a she wolf would have been laughed to scorn by most lovers of the classics. Twenty-five years later the anti-monarchs substituted on the part of tuinglorious conclusion, derived solely from imagination. Today the tendency to ignore ancient courtesy, and when sentiment is introduced as evidence is met by the undeniable statement that the WESTERN COLORADO.

Will Import Cattle From Nevada. Western-bred cattle, especially Colorado cattle, are bringing better prices than they have since last fall, when they were higher than they had been for years, says the Middle Park Times. At the Denver Stock Yards yesterday Colorado yearlings sold for $30 a head, which is from $7 to $10 more than they sold for last year at this time. Last year $30 was considered a good price for 3-year-olds.

When it is taken into consideration that a man buying a 3-year-old can prepare it for market almost immediately and the man buying a yearling has to keep and feed it at least two years, running the chances of losing it through disease or weather, the high price paid for yearlings can be appreciated.

The high price paid for cattle during the past year has had the effect of almost depopulating the cattle ranches of Colorado. When the prices commenced to climb the farmers sold rapidly. The price of cattle had been low for so long that when the opportunity came they did not wait, and in a short time large bunches commenced to move out of the country. About $100,000 worth of cattle was shipped out of Wolcott in about two weeks in September of last year, and the result is that the country above Wolcott is almost barren of cattle now and instead of shipping out this year they will be forced to import.

The imported cattle will come from Utah, Nevada, Oregon or almost any place where they can be secured. They will be shipped into the Western Colorado range country in the spring, and kept there till fall and some of them until next spring and then resold.

At one time western range cattle did not command as good a price as southern cattle, but the feeders have found that they can get the best and quickest results with western range cattle, and the result is that there is a demand for them. The western cattle can go to full feeding immediately and commence to fatten as soon as they get onto corn, while the southern cattle have to be fed up to it, and, as a result, have to be kept longer than western cattle.

A "Hot Time" at the City Council Meeting.

The City Council meeting on Monday night was a "warm article" for the short time it lasted. Superintendent Kaise of the Water and Light Company offered to furnish street lights at $7 per month and Mr. Ryland thought the Board should accept the offer and recognize the petition of citizens who had asked for the service. Councilman Noyes immediately inquired into the condition of the city finances and suggested that the special counsel commence suit for the $2,700 supposed to be due the city from the county.

At this juncture, District Attorney Julien turned loose and said that he proposed to stand on his rights as the legal advisor of the Board as provided in the law and had been treated as a chump as long as he intended to stand it.

Mr. Carler also appeared and asked that the bill of Mr. Summerfield as special counsel be presented in an itemized form. A number of bills were then allowed and Mr. Summerfield's bill laid over.

Definite action in regard to the light matter was postponed until further investigation.

The Statement Contradicted.

Superintendent Bergstein of the Hospital for Mental Diseases denies absolutely the truthfulness of a squib in Saturday's Gazette, which stated that another ex-University graduate in the Hospital employ had been discharged.

The Doctor says that no ex-University student who has been employed at the Asylum has been discharged. On the contrary there are four ex-University students now in the employ of the institution and giving eminent satisfaction and the Doctor says that education is not by any means a bar to eligibility in securing employment at the Hospital.

Mount Davidson Moving.

In referring to the seismic disturbances on the Comstock, the Enterprise advances the theory that owing to the gradual slipping towards the east of the side of old Mount Davidson, now and then the movement is suddenly checked which causes a sharp jar or jerk as if the earth had bumped against something. The usual swaying that accompanies the regulation earthquake is totally absent. On one night 28 distinct shocks were experienced and for sometime past these jars have been noticed, varying of course in force. To bear out the theory advanced by the Enterprise the fact is given that since the completion of the C. & C. works the shaft is 22 feet out of plumb, that is the mouth at the surface is 22 feet east of a point above the bottom. Forecast of Federal Action on the Maine Disaster.

1. The Board of Inquiry will report this week that the explosion was external.

2. The President will immediately, through Minister Woodford, demand from Spain an indemnification of $10,000,000.

3. Spain is expected to reply expressing her willingness to pay, if she is responsible, but maintaining that the explosion was internal and purely accidental. She will, therefore, suggest reference to an international board of Arbitration.

4. In such an event the Administration would be disposed to comply with the suggestion, unless there is an insurrection in Havana, or an irresistible demand for war sweeps through Congress.

5. If Congress acquiesces in the suggestion, the attempt will be made to adjourn that body and leave the whole matter in the President's hands.

STATEMENT FOR THE INFORMATION OF PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS OF RENO WATER WORKS AND ELECTRIC LIGHT BONDS.

THE CITY OF RENO WAS INCORPORATED by a special Act of the Legislature of the State of Nevada, approved March 8, 1897. It is the largest city on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad between Sacramento, California, and Ogden, Utah, has had a steady and continuous growth ever since its inception and is situated in the midst of the richest agricultural and stock raising country between the Sierra Nevada and the Rocky mountains. Its resources are agricultural and pastoral rather than those of mines. It is the terminus of the V. & T. R. R. extending south with its connection three hundred and fifty miles, and also of the N. C. & O. R. R. extending north eighty miles. It is the seat of the State University, of the State Hospital for Mental Diseases, and of the State Agricultural Society. At the general election of 1896 it cast 1,300 votes and its present estimated population is 6,500. Its assessed valuation in the year 1897 was the sum of $1,745,890 which was upon a low and very conservative basis of valuation. Its total bonded indebtedness from all sources is $45,000. The total rate of taxation in the year 1897 for State, county, and local purposes was $2.87 on each one hundred dollars valuation.

By its Incorporation Act the City is authorized, subject to an affirmative vote of its electors to issue its bonds in a sum not exceeding $150,000 for procuring water and constructing municipal water works, and in a necessary sum for constructing municipal electric light works. A special election was called by the City Council for October 7, 1897 at which election the electors of the city voted in favor of bonding the city in the sum of $130,000 for municipal water works and in the sum of $20,000 for a municipal electric light plant by a vote of 409 in favor of and 130 against. In December 1897 an action in quo warranto was instituted in the Supreme Court of Nevada by Mr. A. G. Fletcher in which the constitutionality of the Incorporation Act was assailed upon twelve distinct grounds and also in which the legality, regularity, and sufficiency of the special election held on October 7, 1897, was questioned. On the 23rd day of February 1898, the Supreme Court of Nevada filed its unanimous opinion in the action in which it sustained the constitutionality of the Incorporation Act, and the legality, regularity, and the sufficiency of the special election, in each and every particular. The City Council is authorized by law to raise the necessary funds with which to meet the bond interest charges and to liquidate the principal by either direct taxation of all property or by water and light charges against users or by both.
